
Applications are made available in line with business requirements. This process covers the design of the applications, the proper inclusion of application controls and security requirements, and the development and configuration in line with standards. This allows organizations to properly support business operations with the correct automated applications.

Source URL: <http://gta.georgia.gov/psg/book-page/acquire-and-maintain-application-software>