WhiteHouse.gov Goes Drupal

BY NANCY SCOLA | Saturday, October 24 2009

WhiteHouse.gov has gone Drupal. After months of planning, says an Obama Administration source, the White House has ditched the proprietary content management system that had been in place since the days of the Bush Administration in favor of the latest version of the open-source Drupal software, as the AP alluded to in its reporting several minutes ago.

The great Drupal switch came about after the Obama new media team, with a few months of executive branch service (and tweaking of WhiteHouse.gov) under their belts, decided they needed a more malleable development environment for the White House web presence. They wanted to be able to more quickly, easily, and gracefully build out their vision of interactive

We the People

The main banner area has a green background. On the left, it says "WE the PEOPLE" in large letters, with "YOUR VOICE IN OUR GOVERNMENT" below it. On the right, there is a call to action: "Help make We the People even better. Share your feedback on how this new platform can improve." followed by a "Share Your Feedback" button with a play icon.

Below the banner is a dark green navigation bar with a home icon, "CREATE A PETITION", "OPEN PETITIONS", "RESPONSES", "HOW & WHY", and "Log In | Create an Account".

The main content area features a large blue banner with the text: "Giving all Americans a way to engage their government on the issues that matter to them. Get Started". Below this are two green buttons: "VIEW PETITIONS" and "START A PETITION".

On the right side of the main content area, there is a "Featured Petition Responses" section with a "SEE ALL" link. The responses listed are:

- A Message from President Obama about Your Petition on Reducing Gun Violence
- Combatting Online Piracy while Protecting an Open and Innovative Internet
- Building a 21st Century Immigration System
- Repealing the Discriminatory Defense of Marriage Act
